BUSINESS AT AN END.

So Say Republicans, Who Are Inclined Even to Prevent Speeches.

NOT A QUORUM IN SIGHT.

Senate Democrats Threaten to Secure It If the Minority Becomes Recalcitrant.
Mr. Wilson Expects the President on Thursday—Commissioner Miller Prepared For the New Law—Other News.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The Republicans say there will be no more business of importance transacted in the senate this session, except perhaps the passing of the bill correcting the alcohol schedule. Their leaders say this session is over with to all intents and purposes, and they include in this the making of speeches as well as passage of bills.
Yesterday, from the time the senate met until it went into executive session, Senator Lindsay of Kentucky was ready to make a speech. The Kentucky senator desires to defend the action of the senate finance committee and the Democratic senators who supported them. It is also understood that Senator Allison of Iowa was ready to make a speech of some length on the present status of tariff legislation. It is possible that both of these speeches may be made by the courtesy of the senate, but some Republicans claim that the interdict against any more business includes also speeches.
Some of the Democrats assert, however, that if any attempt is made to prevent the speeches on the Democratic side will be recalled under duress by the sergeant-at-arms. This may lead to something feeling if insisted upon. If Senator Lindsay should get the floor he could not be interrupted by points of no quorum, as he could not be taken off the floor without his consent, but whenever the attempt is made to call up the resolution upon which he is to speak the point can be made, and the present indications are that when the senate meets again tomorrow there will not be a quorum present, as a number of senators intend leaving before then.

Senator Harris has given notice that immediately after the reading of the journal tomorrow he will move an executive session. This is in the interest of Judge Porter of Tennessee, whom he desires to have confirmed.

SLOWLY DISINTEGRATING.

Senate Quorum Difficult to Find—Free Bills on the Calendar.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—For fifteen or twenty minutes yesterday the business of the senate was suspended while the sergeant-at-arms was sent in search of an actual quorum. The senate was 18 short of a voting quorum, only 25 senators having voted on a nonpolitical motion, thus showing that congress is slowly disintegrating. The four supplemental tariff bills were all reported from the finance committee and sent to the calendar. Several bills were passed, among them a bill for the speedy prosecution of the claim of the late Leland Stanford. Adjournment was taken until Wednesday after an executive session.

HAS POOR PROSPECTS.

John Scott Harrison Seeking Confirmation as a Surveyor of Customs.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—J. Scott Harrison of Kansas City, a brother of ex-President Harrison, is here trying to convince the senate to confirm him as surveyor of customs of the Kansas City port. He was nominated for that office by President Cleveland early in the administration and his nomination was rejected by the senate. The nomination seems to have been made largely on a sentiment, for although Harrison was a Democrat he had voted for his brother for president. The entire Democratic delegation from Missouri opposed him.
He is not likely to be confirmed and the president has said that he will not reappoint him if this congress adjourns without confirmation.

TROUBLE WITH THE NEGROES.

Democratic League Wants the Source of Alleged Assessments Abolished.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Trouble with the negro ranks has been caused by the action of the Afro-American bureau of organization of the Democratic congressional committee in sending alleged political assessment letters to negro officeholders. The Negro National Democratic league has taken a decisive stand against the bureau, and President Astwood and Rev. P. H. White, secretary of the league, will probably today submit a recommendation for the abolition of the bureau to Senator Faulkner and Lawrence Gardner of the congressional committee. This action is the result of a discussion held at the conference of the league at Indianapolis last week.

NO INTENTION OF RESIGNING.

Secretary Carlisle's Friends Deny a Story
Now in Circulation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The story that Secretary Carlisle and the president are not in thorough accord as to the policy which should be pursued, and that Mr. Carlisle will tender his resignation, is emphatically denied by the secretary's son Logan. Everyone else who holds confidential relations with the secretary also asserts that Mr. Carlisle has no intention of severing his connection with the administration.

Thanks For the President.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—A handsomely engrossed set of resolutions adopted by the Chicago Union League club, thanking the president for using the United States troops at Chicago during the strike, was received at the white house yesterday.

COLLECTING REVENUE.

Commissioner Miller Ready For Changes
Under the New Tariff Act.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Commissioner Miller of the internal revenue bureau, in consideration of the changes which will be made in the rate of internal revenue taxes under the new tariff act, has completed every arrangement for carrying it into effect as soon as it becomes a law.

COMMISSIONER JOSEPH S. MILLER.

New designs for stamps for playing cards have been approved and the work of printing and packing them will begin at once, so that every revenue district in the country will be supplied as soon as the stamps can be carried to them by the mails after the bill becomes a law. A new design for a stamp to be used in warehousing spirits in general bonded warehouses will also be ready for issue, as will the new stamp taxing leaf tobacco sold by dealers direct to consumers as manufactured tobacco.
Circulars of instructions in all cases have been prepared and everything is in complete readiness for the change.

Commissioner Miller spent much of yesterday at the capitol. He says it will be exceedingly difficult to secure effective treasury regulations under the provision as it stands in the alcohol bill, and estimates that it will result in a loss of $10-000,000 in revenue if not repealed. It is possible that the bill correcting the error may pass the senate tomorrow by unanimous consent, some leading Republicans saying they will not object.

The attention of the treasury officials was called to the point of an error in the punctuation of Section 10 of the free list, which might be construed to prohibit the importation of all drugs and medicines. After a careful reading of the original bill it was the unanimous opinion that such a construction would be forced and nonsensical.

CLEVELAND'S RETURN.

Mr. Wilson Expects Him to Reach Washington by Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Chairman Wilson of the ways and means committee reached Washington from Long Branch last evening. His early return was connected with rumors that President Cleveland would come to Washington at once and that some action on the tariff bill was to be expected. Mr. Wilson denies these statements, but says that he looks for the president's return Thursday. Finding so many senators away from the city, he does not think that there will be any action upon the separate tariff bills this session.

Judge Porter's Nomination.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The Porter nomination was taken up by the senate in executive session yesterday, but was not passed upon owing to the lack of a quorum. It has transpired that a vote was taken on this nomination at the executive session Saturday. Counting those voting, the result was 13 for and 15 against confirmation. This being less than a quorum the senate was forced to adjourn without action.

Restriction on Sale of Shoddy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Representative Richards of Ohio has introduced a bill to restrain and regulate the importation, manufacture and sale of shoddy.
It provides that no fabric or garment containing shoddy shall be sold unless it is labeled plainly, showing the proportion of shoddy contained.

When Martin Will Start Home.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Congressman Martin thinks congress will adjourn about next Thursday. "I will leave for home as soon as it adjourns," he added.

Postmaster For Burlington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Levi Summe has been appointed postmaster at Burlington, Carroll county, Ind.

CHINESE SLAUGHTERED.

Japanese Surprise and Kill 1,400 of Them.
Incidents of the Battle.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—Under date of Aug. 3 The Examiner prints a special from Schichi-Gen, Corea, telling of an attack by the Japanese on Songh-Wan, where the Chinese are said to have had 17,000 troops. The Japs had made a move as if going to Asan, but returned and attacked with great bravery the Chinese fortifications. Seventy Japs were lost and 1,400 Chinese after five hours' fighting. Many of the latter are said to have suicided by falling on their swords rather than be killed by the enemy and many threw their guns away when surrounded.

Fatal Carriage Accident.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—A fatal carriage accident occurred last night near the marble arch in Central park. Miss Nellie Schaffner, daughter of Mrs. Ernestine Schaffner, the "Tomb angel," was thrown out and died soon after.
Mrs. Richard Graham, Miss Schaffner's companion, was also severely injured.

DEBS TELLS HIS TALE.

Appearance Before the Commission Investigating the Strike.

HIS REMEDY LIES IN UNION.

Complete Unity of Action Would Cause Railroads to Treat Fairly With Employees—He Asserts That Government Ownership of Railroads Is Better Than Railroad Ownership of the Government.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—President Debs of the A. R. U. told his story of the strike to the labor commission yesterday. He approved but did not order it, as that could be done only by local lodges. Railroad men had grievances, but the Pullman trouble was the prime cause, he said. Scarcity of work and use of the troops was all that defeated the union.
He thought the strife between railroad brotherhoods would soon be settled and a powerful organization result.

"Do you claim," asked Mr. Wright, "that the railroads were responsible for the strike because they insisted upon hauling Pullman cars?"

"No, sir. The American Railway union was responsible for it, but under aggravating circumstances. The general managers are united to reduce wages.
The employees are united to resist such reductions. In case of a reduction that leads to a strike we think the company is responsible."

"What is your opinion as to the methods of averting strikes?" asked Commissioner Worthington.

"My own idea, and it is the idea of the union, is to unify all the railroad men in the country. A power like that, if judiciously managed, would avert strikes.
The railroad managers would realize the wisdom of treating fairly and meeting it in a conciliatory spirit."

"Do you believe a strike is justifiable that interferes with public convenience?"

"I believe striking is justifiable, no matter what the result, when it is to resist degradation and enslaving conditions."

"Do you believe in government ownership of railroads?" asked Mr. Kernan.

"Yes, sir; I believe the government ownership of railroads is decidedly better than railroad ownership of the government."

There was the heartiest kind of laughter at and applause of the epigram, and it was some time before quiet was restored.

Mr. Debs was followed by P. H. Mor-rissy, first vice grand master of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, who said the feeling between the two orders was not friendly. The brotherhood did not believe in sympathetic strikes, but individually the witness believed in government ownership of railroads and voluntary arbitration. E. E. Clark, grand chief of the order of railway conductors, told about the same story.

MUST HAVE HELP.

Pullman's Starving People Can Get No Aid From the Company.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Governor Altgeld in his personal inspection of Pullman found that stories of practical starvation had not been overdrawn. The governor suggested to the company that it put to work a few hundred men and let them alternate with others until the condition is relieved, but received the answer from Manager Middleton that he did not see how the company could change its plans.
It is probable that the governor will issue a proclamation calling on people of the state for help.

CHARLEY FAIR BAFFLED.

He Fails to Prevent Distribution of His Mother's Wealth to His Sisters.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—Judge Coffey has ordered that the daughters of the late Mrs. Theresa Fair be awarded their portions of their mother's estate.
The daughters are Mrs. Holman Gierlich and Miss Virginia Fair of New York.
They will receive $1,500,000 each. The distribution was opposed by Charles Fair because under his mother's will he cannot receive his share of $500,000 until he is 30 years of age. He is now about 26.

Hampton on Railroad Ownership.

OMAHA, Aug. 21.—General Wade Hampton, United States commissioner of railroads, is in Omaha inspecting the Union Pacific. He is opposed to government ownership, but thinks 50 per cent of earnings should be required on indebtedness to the government.

celebration in Pittsburgh.

convention in Nashville.

the engine striking a horse.

Judge Barker, in the case against sisters teaching school in their Catholic garb in Ebenburg, Pa., decides that they may teach and wear the garb, but refuses to allow the Catholic catechism to be taught.

Representative Henderson of Iowa has prepared a statement on appropriations in which he says the last congress gave $29-000,504.85 for pensions, $663,500 for census and $658,000 for the world's fair more than the present congress had to give for the same purposes.

NEGLECT IN OFFICE.

Memphis Defrauded of Immense Revenue by Failure to Collect License Fees.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 21.—The Memphis grand jury has unearthed frauds of gigantic proportions. Through the criminal carelessness and neglect of the county officials the state and county have been defrauded out of nearly $2,000,000 in revenue during the past eight years.
The grand jury began an investigation a few days ago, and discovered that nearly 600 saloons and several other firms, embracing almost every branch of business, had not paid a cent in taxes and privilege license in eight years. The jury made a partial report of its work to the criminal court yesterday, and as a result 736 indictments have been returned against the delinquents.

The investigation will be continued, and it is said the jury will next turn its attention to the delinquent officials. Under the statute they can be indicted for every case where they failed to collect taxes and licenses. The investigation is the result of a change in the office of the criminal judge. The disclosures have created a sensation. The citizens are organizing to aid the criminal court in bringing the delinquents to justice. The county has been hard pressed for money for several years to meet necessary expenses, and it was only a short time ago that bonds were issued to raise money to repair the courthouse. Had the officials done their duty the county would have had a large surplus instead of being a borrower.

COMSTOCK AFTER THEM.

High School Teacher Punished For Circulating Immoral Books—Other Arrests.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—Harry Milton Upp (alias Harry Milton) of York, Pa., pleaded guilty before Judge Butler in the United States court yesterday to sending an immoral book through the mails. Anthony Comstock was the principal witness against the defendant.
It appears that Upp had for years been the principal of a high school. The book's contents was calculated to debauch the young. The sentence was a fine of $500 and two years' imprisonment in Cherry Hill.

M. L. Delinger, proprietor of the largest and most prominent boarding-house in Lancaster, and Charles C. Rickerson, a young man of good family, have been arrested on a similar charge.
The arrests were made through Attorney Comstock.

BRECKINRIDGE'S CAMPAIGN.

It Is Getting So Warm That Kentuckians Resort to Firearms.

LEXINGTON, Aug. 21.—Colonel W. C.
Breckinridge spoke yesterday afternoon at Georgetown, the county seat of Scott county and the home of Hon. W. C.
Owens. His reception was rather cold.
Professor J. P. Nelson, a teacher in the Kentucky state college at Lexington, was shot in the leg while trying to prevent a difficulty between a negro and a white man named Glass. Both Nelson and Glass are strong Breckinridge men and Glass in attempting to shoot the negro in some way hit Nelson. The big Owen barbecue will be held here, at Breckinridge's home, Wednesday. The women of the district interested in the defeat of Breckinridge will furnish a basket dinner for 2,500 persons.

POSED AS A STATUE MODEL.

But Officer Birmingham Won't Do as a Model Policeman.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Officer Thomas Birmingham, who posed as the model for the Haymarket statue, was dismissed from the police force yesterday for neglect of duty. When chosen from 3,000 comrades there was probably no better built man in Chicago. During the last three years, however, he has more than once been charged with intoxication and neglect.

Miss Pullman to Wed a Prince.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The engagement is announced of Miss Florence Pullman, daughter of George M. Pullman, to the Prince of Isenburg-Birstein, eldest son of Prince Charles of Isenburg-Birstein and the Archduchess Marie Louise of Austria, a cousin of the emperor of Austria. Miss Pullman's father only consented to his daughter's engagement on condition that children shall possess the full rights of succession to the title, dignities and hereditary privileges of the house of Isenburg-Birstein.

EXPOSURE OF THE TRICK.

Shipped From the East Last Winter and Planted on Henry Kelsey's Farm—Reaping Big Profits When the Facts Came Out—Death of a Ten-Thousand-Dollar Horse—News of the State.

GOSHEN, Ind., Aug. 21.—A petrified giant recently found on Henry Kelsey's farm, near Middlebury, and which has created much excitement throughout the northern part of the state, turns out to be one of the most ingenious and cleverly worked fakes ever perpetrated. Experts from neighboring cities discovered the spuriousness of the specimen, and the whole story of the hoax has leaked out. The specimen was purchased in the east last winter and shipped to Bristol by Henry Sanger of Bristol, who formed a partnership with Kelsey and planted it in a marsh on Kelsey's farm, where it was discovered by Kelsey last week while digging a ditch. Sanger turned up in Middlebury a few hours afterward, publicly proposed a partnership with Kelsey, and in a few hours they had a room rented and were showing the giant at 25 cents a look. They were doing a rushing business, averaging $300 a day, when the exposure came.
On Friday two St. Louis parties offered $1,000 for the specimen, but it was refused by the pair, who were looking for bigger game.

SETTLED AT LAST.

Roby Prizefight Cases Ended by a Compromise.

HAMMOND, Ind., Aug. 21.—The celebrated Roby prizefight cases, which cuit court yesterday on a compromise.

Dominick O'Malley was fined $1,000 and Solly Smith and Billy Woods $300 each on pleas of guilty.

Life Made Miserable For Him.

DILLSBORO, Ind., Aug. 21.—Captain George P. Tinker was found dead at his room with a bullet through his brain.
He met death by suicide. Early this month he was attacked by masked ruffians and terribly beaten, and some days ago he professed to have discovered a plot to decoy him outside the town limits to subject him to further indignities.
Brooding over this matter is supposed to have driven him insane. Captain Tinker corresponded with several papers and he is said to have incurred the ill will of the vicions.

High Life Elopement.

FORT WAYNE, Aug. 21.—John W.
Mahin, son of Presiding Elder Mahin of trude Clippenger, daughter of Professor Clippenger of Taylor university. They were married at Van Wert, O. Young Mahin is a theological student and the bride a society belle.

Gored to Death.

MOORESVILLE, Ind., Aug. 21.—John W. Harryman, four miles east of here, was gored to death by a vicious Jersey bull. The same animal attacked Mrs.
Harryman a short time ago and would have killed her had her son not come to her rescue. Since then she has been paralyzed.

Plea of Guilty to Murder.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Aug. 21.—George Reed pleaded guilty on his preliminary

Miraculous Escape of Passengers on the Vandalia Fast Express.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—The New York fast express on the Vandalia railroad, from New York to St. Louis, was ditched two miles west of Pocahontas, Ill., last evening, and all on board had a miraculous escape from death. While running 45 miles an hour the engine, three mail and one baggage car left the tracks and turned over. Two coaches and the parlor car kept the track. Engineer Menafee, Fireman Dickinson and four postal clerks were the only ones injured. The train was so badly torn up that the remainder of the train had to be brought to the city over the tracks of the B. and O. Southwestern.

SYSTEMATICALLY PLUNDERED.

Millionaire Brewer's Farm Robbed of $20,000 Worth of Products.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—The sentence at Coatesville of Charles Wille and Walter Carmidgeon to 20 years in the penitentiary has unfolded a remarkable conspiracy. John F. Betz, the millionaire brewer, owns 2,000 acres of land, divided into eight farms, at Betz's woods, 20 miles from here. It was under the supervision of a man named Harkins. For five years past the returns have been very small. An investigation has been made which results in the implication of about 75 persons in a series of whole-sale thefts. Produce was shipped from the farms by railroad and the loss is esti-<

Among the articles on the free list of the Gorman bill are: dragon's blood, cutch, sauerkraut, dividiv, valonia, tapioca, unmanufactured hoofs, old junk, fossils, skeletons, spunk, ice and lemon peel. A great necessity like sugar, not manufactured here, is tariffed, and the trust gets rich. Great is democratic statesmanship!

The date of Hon. W. D. Owen's speaking in this city is Sept. 4, as heretofore announced, but the hour has been changed to one o'clock p. m. instead of 7:30. This is better as it will give the country people an opportunity to hear the distinguished speaker.

CHAIRMAN WILSON'S IGNORANCE.

New York Sun.
 The Hon. William L. Wilson, of West Virginia, chairman of the house committee of ways and means, made this assertion in his speech on Monday, preparatory to voting for the Gorman tariff bill and surrendering his own:
 "I am informed—whether it be true or not I do not know—that the sugar trust, in anticipation of the passage of the bill, have imported about a hundred millions' worth, or, it has been said, even in excess of that quantity of raw sugar."

And in reply to a question from Mr. Dingley, of Maine, as to his authority for saying what he did, he replied:

"I did not intend to give the figures that one hundred millions of raw sugar had been imported. I stated that I had been informed that the sugar trust had imported about that amount, and I have even heard it stated that it was in excess of that. It has been put at 48,000 tons by gentlemen who profess to know."

If Mr. Wilson had possessed even the smallest acquaintance with the facts, he would have known that $100,000,000 is nearly the value of an entire year's importation of sugar into this country. If he had known anything about sugar refining he would have known that 448,000 tons represents only about three months' consumption by the American Sugar Refining company alone, and would not, therefore, be an extraordinary provision. And if he knew the market price of sugar, he would know that it costs only about $60 per ton, making the total value of 448,000 tons less than $27,000,000, instead of the $100,000,000 and upward that he speaks of.

This exhibition of ignorance by the chairman of the most important committee of the house of representatives is as humiliating as it is surprising. God help the democracy when such men are its leaders!

Ask and Receive.
 Dull times are the times to put forth the greatest effort and the most money. People don't usually ask for what they have already. Advertising is merely asking for trade. Don't expect that you will get a big trade in dull times, but keep count and you'll find that the advertising was profitable. Profitable right at the time and enormously profitable after a while.

The very fact that only a few merchants are wise enough to advertise in dull seasons, makes it all the more profitable for those who do. You are there when others are not. It gives you great prominence. It will make your advertising in busy times much more effective.

Common sense has a great deal to do with advertising. Think about it from a common sense standpoint. It may take some "nerve" to pay out money for newspaper space when the business isn't paying expenses, but it will pay. More than half the business houses in the country would be ahead if they could shut up for three months in the summer. But they don't do it. Why? Simply because they can't afford to. People would forget them.

Same way in advertising. Think about it.

WASHINGTON LETTER

THE LATEST POLITICAL GOSSIP FROM THE CAPITAL.

Interesting Doings of Congress and a Dish of Spice Here and There as Seen By Our Special Correspondent—Notes, Incidents, Etc.

WASHINGTON, August 20, 1894.

Mr. Cleveland was figuratively given a slap in the face when the senate adopted the resolution offered by Murphy, of New York, declaring it to be the sense of the senate that no further tariff legislation should be considered at this session, and that it was advisable to adjourn at the earliest possible moment, and the free traders of the house are accusing the democratic steering committee of the senate of having buccined them by making promises concerning the passage of the popgun tariff bills which the adoption of this resolution makes it impossible for them to carry out. All of the republicans present, Puffer, Kyle and Stuart, and the following democrats voted for the Murphy resolution: Blanchard and Caffery, of Louisiana; Gibson and Gorman, of Maryland; Murphy, of New York; Roach, of North Dakota, and Smith, of New Jersey.

Senator Sherman took the floor after the adoption of the Murphy resolution to make a few remarks, which he correctly characterized as "placental." He told the democrats of their numerous blunders which included from fifty to one hundred important errors in the tariff bill, now in the hands of Mr. Cleveland, one of which—that for the free entry of alcohol used in the arts—would, if uncorrected, cost the government from twenty to thirty millions of dollars in lost revenue annually. He also had a sharp word or two to say about the unusual extent to which the encroachments of the executive upon the legislative branches of the government had been pushed during the present session of congress, and in conclusion expressed his belief that the best thing to be done was to go home and await the verdict of the voters before further meddling with the tariff. To show that he was in earnest Mr. Sherman has himself gone home not to return until the opening of the next session of congress.

While it is generally regarded as certain that Mr. Cleveland is going to swallow his big dish of crow and allow the senate tariff bill, which he so roundly abused in the Wilson letter, to become a law, either with or without his signature, there are men—prominent men, too—who believe that he is still in doubt, and that his present visit to Buzzard's Bay was not because of his illness, but because he could better hold secret conferences there with certain individuals than he could at the white house, and that those conferences will settle whether the bill shall be allowed to become a law or be vetoed. These men say further that Secretary Carlisle is fully committed to the senate bill and has been ever since he wrote its sugar schedule, and that his actions, in sending copies of the bill to all collectors of customs and otherwise preparing to execute the provisions of the new law, is merely a shrewd move to allow the public to suppose that the administration accepts the bill and thus to aid in coercing Mr. Cleveland into allowing it to become a law.

Congress can do nothing more for lack of a quorum in both branches, but it will be kept in session until next Monday, unless Mr. Cleveland acts upon the tariff bill before then, and it may even then have trouble to adjourn if some member takes a notion to raise the p-dint of "no quorum" when the motion is made. However, it is probable that enough of the members might be got to return for the purpose of making a quorum to adjourn when it can be done without jeopardizing the tariff bill.

"Nothing but the need of the $8,000 a year which the position pays keeps Secretary Carlisle in the cabinet." This assertion was made by a personal friend of Secretary Carlisle's—a Kentuckian—and it is not surprising to those who know anything about the inside history of the administration. Mr. Carlisle has known for some time that the failure of the financial policy, or rather the entire lack of financial policy, of the administration has killed his political future, and he feels doubly sore because he has not been allowed to be more than a clerk to Mr. C. He thinks that things would have been better had he been allowed to control affairs connected with his department, as he expected he would be when he left the senate, where he could have remained as long as Kentucky could elect a democratic legislature, to enter the cabinet. He has been disposed to rebel for some time, and his letter against the popgun tariff bills for which Mr. Cleveland was largely responsible, barring the free sugar bill, which he did not want, was sent to Senator Harris without Mr. Cleveland's knowledge, and with the special intention of blocking Mr. Cleveland's efforts to help the Whitney coal syndicate, and the Carnegie iron ore syndicate, and at the same time to help the sugar trust, which may furnish a salary for Mr. Carlisle when he eventually has to leave the cabinet.

Byrum's Disappearance.

The mystery concerning the disappearance of Emanuel Byrum still continues and as time goes on it is deepening. Last evening James Byrum, a son of the missing man, who lives east of Cloverdale, called at the BANNER TIMES office and furnished a description of his father. He weighs 130 pounds, is five feet, six inches in height, was dressed in dark clothes and wore green goggles. The last seen of him as has been mentioned before in this paper was on Thursday morning. He visited a restaurant in north Greencastle that morning about eight o'clock and then disappeared. Byrum was on his way to Alva Mulletts, northwest of the city to see about some wood. He has a sister, Mrs. Martha Grimes, at Russellville and another, Mrs. Isaac Grimes at Bainbridge. Byrum draws a pension of $12.00 per month, and worked at Hillis' quarry. His son states there was no cause for his disappearance as their family relations were of the pleasantest. The father had but ten cents with him when he left home. The family are greatly worried over the matter and will today send out advertisements to the large daily papers. A slight clew yesterday led to the family writing to Terre Haute, but no reply is at hand. The disappearance is very mysterious to say the least.

South Greencastle.

Rev. C. E. Wallace is shipping hay to South Carolina.

The magnitude of the strip was never more vividly shown than on last evening when one of the gypsies who are camping east of the city became lost near the famous retreat of "Hobo" Kelly. The rush and confusion of the multitude who thronged the streets was too much for him and he had to be guided out of the city.

A NEW DAM FOR IRRIGATORS.

The Latest Device Is a Canvas Check Dam of Triangular Form.

There is a gradual advancement in irrigation science in the far west. The latest device is a canvas or duck check dam cut in the triangular form and calculated to fit any irrigation ditch without any delay or unnecessary use of the shovel. The device is very simple and was invented for free use by Professor Huntley of the Arkansas valley experiment station, in Colorado.

A piece of canvas 4 feet square will make two aprons. To a piece of scantling or two strips of board 6 feet long nail the cloth, first having hemmed in a piece of rope under the dependent edges and passing through a ring at the lower point. This rope is then passed through two holes in the beam, and thus securely fastened.

With a 3 or 4 foot iron rod, which may be taken from the end board of a wagon, the outfit is complete. Take the apron to a point on the ditch or lateral where a check is desired, thrust the rod through the ring and into the bottom of the ditch with the handle sloping somewhat up stream, drop the projecting ends of the beam on the banks of the ditch, and the job is complete. The manner in which this check dam diverts the water will surprise the man who tries it. Professor Huntley's device, originally sketched by the Colorado Field and Farm, can hardly fail to interest many readers, for there is no abatement in the irrigation boom. The irrigation idea is no longer confined to the southwest. Agriculturists everywhere who practice intensive farming recognize the importance of irrigation, which practically places the control of crops in man's hands.

DIVORCE SUITS FILED.

A Brace of Tales of Woe Told in the Legal Way.

Levi McMillen has brought suit for divorce from Nancy C. McMillen and through his attorney has lodged a tale of woe in the circuit clerk's office that is soul-barrowing. The plaintiff avers about as follows: That for twenty-five years he has lived in Putnam county, and on December 25, 1871, he was united in marriage with his wife Nancy, and they lived together until in May, 1894; that defendant treated plaintiff in a cruel and inhuman manner; that for six months past before the separation of the parties he was confined to his room and bed by serious illness and by reason thereof he was weak, feeble and helpless, requiring constant care and attention and constant presence of some person as attendant; that defendant knowing his helpless condition would go away from plaintiff's home in night time, against his protest and leave him alone, and that defendant would associate with young, gay and festive unmarried male persons, without his knowledge; that defendant ceased to love, honor and respect the plaintiff; that she became estranged and bestowed her love on another; that she failed to prepare food for him and refused others to prepare food although there was a plenty always provided and kept in abundance in the house; that plaintiff became very weak and feeble in consequence and greatly distressed in mind, and but for timely assistance of friends he would have died from starvation; that she administered to him while asleep an ounce of chloroform with intent to cause plaintiff to sleep that sleep that knows no waking; that she forbid his only sister, a near neighbor of excellent character, to visit him or help him, also forbidding his nieces to enter the premises; that defendant has abandoned plaintiff without any just cause, while he was sick and unable to care for himself, and has sought fields that are green and pastures new and refuses longer to share his bed and board; that during such illness defendant procured and administered contrary to the orders of the attending physician large and unnecessary quantities of poisonous and noxious drugs and medicines for the purpose of causing plaintiff to journey to that undiscovered country whence no traveler returns. Plaintiff concludes by saying he has always been a true, faithful and exemplary husband. His attorney is P. O. Collier. Mr. McMillen is a prominent farmer and stockraiser of Washington township.

John H. James represents the defendant in the above and states he will file an answer in circuit court that will contain some pretty lively and severe charges, among them that McMillen had chased his wife with a revolver, etc.; and that he will on behalf of Mrs. McMillen ask $3000 alimony. The case is attracting considerable attention.

SHOPELL VS. SHOPELL.

Lutisha Shoppell wants to be separated from Peter Shoppell. Lutisha, through her attorney John W. Layne, says she was married to Peter on August 4, 1893, and lived with him until May 11, 1894; that he is a person of melancholy disposition except at times when he would break out in violent rages of temper and curse and abuse her; that his abuse and cruel treatment was constant, that he failed to provide and support her since their marriage; that she was always true to him; notwithstanding his vile language and cruelty has lived forty-five years in Indiana, twenty years in Putnam county and five months in Greencastle, and does general housework.

A day or so ago the Central Na-

Stockton, Gillispie & Co., live stock commission merchants at the union stock yards, Indianapolis, in which they enclosed a check for $1004.45 to be placed to the credit of Amanda E. Brown. On Thursday last a fellow drove in the stock yards with eighteen head of cattle and left them with the firm to sell.
They sold them and could get nothing satisfactory out of the fellow as to where he lived, but he said the cattle belonged to his mother, naming her as Amanda E. Brown. He gave his name as J. R. Brown. The fellow told the commission men to send the returns to the Central bank after the commission men had refused to give him the money.
He was given $20 out of the net of the cattle, and the balance was sent here. This morning the bank received a telephone message from Indianapolis telling the bank to return the draft as the cattle had been stolen. They were taken from the eastern part of the county and a Mr. Underwood was there looking for them, in company with Henry Underwood of Danville.

was just a trifle previous as Mr.

A DAY IN WONDERLAND
With Sells Brothers and Their Enormous United Shows.

"The times change and we have changed with them," said the Roman philosopher.
It may also be said that these changes are not always for the better, but often bring retrogression and decay; and this is particularly true of the circus of today. In fact, since the great ring-master, death, gave Adam Forepaugh and P. T. Barnum their final cues, it may be remarked that but one truly great and legitimate circus remains, that of Sells Brothers, which is to exhibit at Greencastle on Tuesday, August 28. The only big tented exhibition that will visit the city this season, introducing Grand Triple Ring Circus, Hippodrome Races, Mammoth Menagerie, two Elevated Theatre Stages, Australian Aviary, Arabian Caravan, Pilgrimage to Mecca, Tropical Aquarium, Spectacular Pageants and Trans-Pacific Wild Beast Exhibit and Free Street Parade. Sells Brothers present a more than abundant feast of everything which appertains to the most popular entertainments. In exclusive features, such as their mammoth pair of Hippopotami, the Hairless Horse, a whole flock of Ostriches, Trained Seals and Sea Lions, and a host of the rare curiosities too numerous to mention completes a wonderful performance. Tye Sells Brothers' big enterprise has been under one and the same management for a longer period than any other in existence, being now in its twenty-third prosperous year.
This season the price of admission has been reduced from 50 to 25 cents for all, so nobody can afford to miss the big show of the world. Special excursion rates on all lines of travel.

Night Train Service Resumed on C. & E. I. R. R.
The Chicago & Eastern Illinois R. R.

at Evansville 9:30 a. m. Train No. 4 will leave Terre Haute daily at 11:15 p. m., and arrive at Chicago 7:10 a. m.
This gives the traveling public four

It was the unanimous opinion of

There will be a special meeting

Dick Garland, of Garland's this evening.

R. G. Smith and R. G. Underwood are here today. They are the gentlemen from whom the cattle were stolen mentioned yesterday.
They will be paid the $1004 draft in the Central bank.

John James left today for Bainbridge to officiate as prosecutor in the case against James Smith growing out of his trouble with John Jacobs mentioned heretofore in the BANNER TIMES.

A forlorn democratic rooster has taken up its abode in the court house yard. It is the only bird left and looks as though it had been run through a threshing machine.
The gang has adopted him.

The Vandalia brakeman hurt at Limedale yesterday was C. E.
Jackley, of Terre Haute. A six-hundred-pound box crushed Jackley's head against the door of a freight car. He was dangerously hurt.

Thos. Davenport and others last night borrowed the sixty-foot seine in the possession of Sheriff Glidewell and dragged Walnut creek northwest of the city in a search for the missing Emanuel Byrum.
They found no clue.

Ol. Cummings, of Cloverdale, was run in last night for unduly lubricating his neck with liquor until he developed a jag with stained glass windows. Ol. got thirteen—the unlucky number—days dispensed by the Greencastle justice shop.

Mr. S. P. Barton, of Lawrenceville, Ill., has been here for a week past and has repainted and improved the Nutt place in north Greencastle till one would hardly know the property. He is contemplating further improvements there.

It is said that the pet crow of the organette is roosting high these days since the passage of the Gorman bill and that its squawks have a truly doleful sound. Perhaps that sensible bird has grasped the true idea of the doom of the democratic party and is "preparing for the rush."

Some of the papers are showing that there are five deadly ingredients in cigarettes, as an argument against their use. The "stink" of a cigarette is deadly enough without anything else, and no self-respecting person will pollute another man's house with a lighted one at any time or on any occasion.

About fifty men and boys indulged in a fox chase this morning near the Vandalia depot. A fox belonging to an opera troupe, escaped from the baggage car and took to the woods and would have made his escape had it not been for a long chain which was fastened to him. A half hour's sport was had, however, before sly renard was captured.

That enterprising firm, Watson, Little & Co., of Brazil, have a man in Putnam county four miles east of Cloverdale, drilling for coal.
James Bridgewater has the work in charge and has the hole down more than four hundred feet. He has struck limestone and is using a diamond drill. Just what the prospects are we are thus far unable to learn, but they must be good or the firm would not continue.

Edith Ragan, by her next friend, John W. Ragan, vs. the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis railway company, is the title of a damage suit filed in the circuit court. The complaint charges that the defendant on March 17, 1893, contracted to carry plaintiff from this city to the station at Darwin but instead of stopping at the latter station carried her to Reno, five miles from her home, that she was compelled to remain in the station at Reno several hours, and that upon taking a train back to Darwin she was again carried past the platform and compelled to alight in the ditch at the side of the track.

She asks $500.

The room on northwest corner of square, owned by D. E. Williamson, has been rented to G. W. Cooper and his younger brother, A. W.
Cooper. A line of hardware will be added to the implement business which the older member of the firm has managed for a year on north Jackson street. The firm will be known as Cooper Bros. Hardware Co. and expect to open up their new stock about September 1.

A number of ladies from this city are picnicing at Fairview park, Indianapolis, today. They were joined by a party from Indianapolis and a general good time is predicted. Those going from here were: Mesdames E. A. Hamilton, D. E. Williamson, Thos. Abrams, H. S. Renick, G. C. Smythe, Jerome
Allen, F. D. Ader, Alex Lockridge, Miss Ida Black and Miss Ames.

Every newspaper man has at some time in his business experience, says an exchange, met the man who now takes more papers than he can read. He paid 25 cts. for an almanac, wiped his nose on an awning, tried to blow out an electric light, put a nickel in the postoffice expecting the postmaster to appear, wanted to lick the cashier of the bank because it closed at four o'clock and watched the sign over one of the jewelry stores, waiting for it to strike.

The Weather.

The indications for this vicinity

WAPPENHANS.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

High pressure continues over the greater part of the country, but the area is moving eastward, and low barometric areas in northwest and western gulf, will follow it.
But little change in temperature occurred and fair weather continued except that rains fell in the northwest and the southern states, west of the Mississippi; heavy rains in Louisiana, Arkansas, and Minnesota.

ONLY A WOMAN.

By CHARLES B. LEWIS (M. QUAD).

(Copyright, 1894, by Charles B. Lewis.)

The last raid of the Indians on the overland trail through Kansas was made in 1867, and such was its strength that for two weeks they had possession of 10 stations and 100 miles of road. During this time 20 passengers, 40 employees of the stage company, 5 mail riders and a dozen soldiers were killed. Seven coaches, two wagon trains and nine stations were burned, and 100 or more fine horses were run off or killed. The only station saved was Reilly's, and I am going to tell you the story.

The stage company had asked for soldiers to help beat the Indians off, but the request came so late that in only two or three cases could the troops be placed. Six of us made a 20 mile ride to Reilly's by night, but only four reached the place. The other two were killed as we blundered into a camp of warriors just before daylight. The station consisted of a sodhouse, a stable of the same material, two or three haystacks and a dugout. This latter was simply a hole or excavation about 10 feet square by 4 deep. Sods and stones were used to make a wall all around this pit two feet high. On top of the wall was a roof of poles and sods. At intervals in the walls were loopholes for rifles. Neither the house nor the stable could be defended against a determined attack, but three or four men could make a desperate fight in the dugout.

We expected to reach Reilly's before the Indians could attack. They were on their way there and only five miles distant when we ran into them. They pursued us to within rifle shot of the station, and when daylight came we counted over 100 mounted warriors encircling the spot. We expected to find there two station hands, a stage driver, at least one mail rider and perhaps a couple of passengers who had gone west by the last coach. We found only a woman, a wounded man and a corpse. The woman was the wife of the wounded man, who was Joe Harper, a stage driver, and the dead man was one of the station hands.

On the afternoon of the day before Harper's stage had been attacked eight miles away. His wife and two prospectors were passengers. Both prospectors were on top of the stage. Both were killed and fell to the ground, and the driver received a bullet in the leg, but brought his stage in. The station hand had been fired on while out looking for a stray horse and had reached shelter to die an hour before our arrival. Had the Indians pushed forward and attacked they would have had an easy victory, but having no fear that the station would be re-enforced during the night they decided to wait until next morning. There had been another station hand, but early in the morning, unknown to the woman and her wounded husband, he had mounted one of the horses and fled for his life, though it was subsequently ascertained that he was captured about seven miles away and put to death by torture.

We had, then, when we came to talk of defense, four soldiers, a wounded man and a woman to beat off a hundred bloodthirsty Indians. We left out the man and the woman in our count, and as the dawn began to creep over the plains and render objects distinguishable we looked about to see what could be done. We had talked with the woman and her husband in the sodhouse and in total darkness, not daring to show a light.

We knew that he was almost helpless and lying on a bed of blankets, and judging from her tones I at least believed her to be a faint hearted woman who would scream at the report of a rifle. She came out to us as we were peering about, and we found her to be a sweet faced woman not over 25 years of age. Joe Harper, as I may tell you, while serving as a stage driver, was yet a man of good family and education. Their marriage was a bit of a romance and had taken place only a few months before.

"Now, men," began the little woman in a brisk way, "there's but one thing to be done. We can't fight the Indians from the sodhouse or stable, because they'll set fire to the haystacks the first thing and burn everything up. We must take to the dugout. Sergeant, you and one of your men carry Joe over there, and the others will fill the water barrel and help me to get the food. We must work fast, for the Indians will attack within an hour."

She took command so naturally and she was so cool and quiet in giving her orders that no one even looked surprised. When I went into the sodhouse with her, she said to her husband:

"Joe, we'll carry you to the dugout right away, and I'll wash and dress your wound later on. There are nine fine horses in the stable, and I'm going to leave them there to burn up. If they've got to be lost to the company, it's better to have them roasted than to be run off by the Indians."

"Yes, that's so," replied Joe. "Be sure to bring over all the arms and ammunition. We'll be holed up here for three or four days probably. How about water?"

"Don't you worry about anything.

Now, boys, lift him easy and don't stumble on the way."

In half an hour we had everything in the dugout which we could make use of, and the Indians had opened fire at long range. Joe's wife looked around to see that nothing was missing and then said to me:

"Sergeant, there are two things yet to be done. If the Indians use the houses and stacks for cover instead of burning them, they will be terribly close to us. Those horses must be killed, poor creatures, and then we must set fire to everything with our own hands."

"Wouldn't it be better to turn the horses loose and hope to recapture them by and by?" I suggested.

"No. We should never see one of them again. One of us must shoot them while the other gets ready to start the fire."

I am certain that if I had refused to enter the stables she would not have hesitated. There were nine of the finest horses on the whole line, five of which were for saddle alone. If they were to die, it was surely more merciful to shoot them than to let them roast to death, and it was a standing order with the company to kill and destroy rather than permit anything to fall into the hands of the redskins. It seemed like murder to go among them revolver in hand, and when I left the stable I had something of that feeling which must come over the man who has plotted and carried out a cold blooded murder.

"It had to be done, and no one will blame you," said Joe's wife as I rejoined her, "and now everything is ready for a match."

The Indians had opened fire long before, and the men in the dugout were answering briskly as we started the conflagration. It was a clear 100 feet of open ground we had to traverse, and as we stood hesitating for a moment the woman said:

"Don't stop for me when we start. Wave your hat to let them know we are coming. That's it! Now, then, here we go!"

I reached out for her hand, but she used them both to gather up her skirts. We rushed out from behind one of the haystacks just as a cloud of black smoke swirled down to hide us, but I heard the whiz of 50 bullets before I tumbled into the open door at her heels. A bullet cut the cloth on my right shoulder, and one passed through a sleeve of her dress, but neither of us was scratched. On the west side about 20 Indians had galloped up to within pistol shot, and for the hot fire which the three soldiers maintained they would have rode us down. The door was hardly shut when the woman was on her feet and saying:

"Now, boys, you are throwing away lots of good lead. Those Spencers don't shoot like a rifle. Take it cool and see if you can't hurt some one. Here—let me show you a shot."

She had a Henry rifle, which I believed belonged to one of the station men. The Indians were crowded about the stable, probably hoping to get out some of the horses, and the woman waited for the smoke to lift. The rest of us watched for her shot. With her eyes to the sights she presently called out:

"I'm waiting for that chap on the spotted pony. He's behind the big stack now. Ah, there he comes!"

Her rifle cracked as she uttered the last words, and the warrior, who was a subchief, threw up his hands and tumbled headlong, shot through the head.

"You can do it if you take time," she said as she withdrew her rifle from the porthole. "Now, Joe, how's the leg?"

"Never mind the leg till the fight is over," he replied.

"But I shall. I'll wash and dress it and then have the boys prop you up for a shot at your old enemies. If you don't kill at least one, you won't remember that you were in the row."

The Indians couldn't stand our fire long, having no shelter, and while Joe's wound was being dressed the whole gang of them withdrew out of range. We were certain of having killed two and wounded three or four, and there were four dead ponies lying between the sod-houses and the haystacks. Luckily for us, the wind changed and swept the smoke and smell out on the plain as the fire raged for several hours, and the odor from the roasting horses was terribly strong. Long enough before the redskins made another move Joe had been made as comfortable as possible under the circumstances. By the aid of blankets and cracker boxes we propped him up at a porthole, and now that we had six rifles to blaze away with there was no fear that twice as many Indians could drive us out. It was an hour after noon before they developed their plan. They had been re-enforced until they numbered 123 mounted men. Reilly's was the only one of the 10 stations they had not yet destroyed, and they were desperately determined that it should not escape them. They could not burn us out, and the walls were bullet proof. I mean that they could not burn us out by setting fire to the roof or sides, but there were the door and its frame. The door could stand against bullets, but door and frame must burn if fire was placed against them. There were two portholes on a side. Long and high before any of us men had made out the plan Joe's wife turned from one of the portholes and said:

"We want two more portholes on this side to defend the door. As near as I can make out, they are gathering dry grass and twisting it into bundles. That means they are going to come with a rush, fling down a dozen bundles and then try to set fire to them and the door." With our sabers we worked through the sod walls and made two extra portholes. They were only finished when the scheme of the redskins was patent to all.

"Now, Joe," said the little woman, "the four soldiers will take the front and you and I the back. Move him around, boys, and I'll take two of your revolvers. Joe will use the rifle, but I'll try to make the pistol bullets count. The reds will divide and charge front and back at once. Are you all right, Joe?"

"Yes, Molly, all right."

"Well, here are extra cartridges if you want to reload. If I'm hit, don't get shaky and stop shooting. If the flames get hold of that door, we'll be roasted in this trap. What are they doing on your side, boys?"

I reported that a number of warriors were creeping forward on their faces, and she said:

"Same on this side. They are going to concentrate their fire on the portholes while the others charge. We needn't worry about their bullets, however, as they must fire at an angle. Now they are picking up the bundles of grass. I can see three or four of them with brushwood torches all alight. Joe, do you want a sip of whisky to brace your nerves? Boys, how is it with you?"

None of us wanted the liquor, and it was not brought out. We were all pale-faced and trembling under the strain when the Indians got the signal from their chief. That charge has gone down to history as the bravest one ever made by a war party of Sioux. They knew our strength and coolly reasoned on losing six or eight men. It had been decided that there was no other way to get us out, and the warriors who bore the bundles of grass and torches were all young men and volunteers. There were two parties of 20 each, and they laid aside rifles and blankets and made their start from points just beyond rifle range. A hot fire was opened by all the others, and the muzzle of my carbine was struck twice before I had fired a shot.

The result of that rush has been given in military and other reports. Our bullets began to tell as soon as the warriors got within fair range, but we could not check them. Fourteen out of the 20 men on my side got close up to the dugout, and at least 10 bunches of the dry grass were heaved against the door. Five of the party carried torches at the start. We killed four and wounded the fifth, and a sixth warrior who seized the torch from the wounded one was likewise killed. They got the bundles where they wanted them, but could not set them on fire. On the other side Joe and his wife killed five and severely wounded four others, and not a warrior got nearer than 10 feet. It was a desperate but useless charge. At sundown the Indians had sighted Custer's column moving up, and they made haste to get safely away, bearing off the wounded, but leaving their dead. An hour later our comrades were at hand, and when we opened the door to them Joe's wife sat down and buried her face in her hands and sobbed like a child. She was a heroine, but a woman above all.

General Custer himself stood beside her when she finally looked up, and wiping away the last of her tears she held out her hand and said, "General, I've been showing your boys how to kill Indians, but I'll turn over the command to you now and look after Joe's hurt."

Economizing on Bait.

"Fishing!" said a man who lives on Blake street, "why, I went fishing in New Jersey and caught the biggest string of eels that you ever heard of. There is the tandem eel that you have all heard of. When they go down or up stream from their quarters for the winter or summer, they go in single file, one behind the other, like the primeval man. They leave exactly six inches of space between their noses and the tail of the eel in front. When an eel sees that the fellow ahead is lengthening this space, he jumps ahead, and seizing the tail of the offender in his mouth pulls him back into place. I dropped my hook down right in front of a string of those tandem eels, and the bait was accepted, and I jerked out the eel. The one behind, seeing that the fellow ahead was running away, obeyed his instructions and seized his tail to pull him back, and so also did the one behind and so on to the last one, and I pulled them out hand over hand till I had a great mass of slippery eels about me."

Want Him Taught Welsh.

The Duke of York will be Prince of Wales one day, and it has been suggested that he could do no more popular thing just now than to have the announcement made at the Eisteddfod of his intention to have his boy taught the Welsh language. The Welsh people have long felt aggrieved that not a single member of the royal family has taken the trouble to learn their language, although all of them can talk in such relatively unimportant tongues as English, German and French, and the queen herself has mastered the mysteries of Hindoostanee.

After a Famous Library.

Search is being made at the present time in the cellars and dungeons of the famous Kremlin at Moscow for the library of Ivan the Terrible, which, it is believed, has been hidden somewhere in the great building since 1570. The library, it is said, contains extremely valuable Greek and Latin manuscripts, which passed from the hands of the Byzantine emperors to those of the czars. It is believed that the manuscripts, if discovered, will clear up many dark and uncertain passages of history.

DEVICES FOR POULTRY.

Simple Methods of Supplying the Fowls With Clean Water and Food.

The V shaped trough B, made from ordinary fence boards, shows a simple arrangement for supplying the poultry regularly with pure water. It may be made of any desired length, but 18 inches is sufficient. In this, at one end, invert a five gallon can or jug, A, which has been previously filled with pure water. To keep it erect drive two stakes at the end of the trough and lean the can against them. If further support is necessary, tie it to the stakes. As soon as the water is lowered in the trough below the opening in the top of the can a little air is admitted, and water flows out to take the place of that consumed. By this means water can be kept pure and wholesome, and if the vessel be made of earthenware and placed in the shade it will keep cool for a long time. The New England Homestead, which furnishes the foregoing device, also suggests some feeding arrangements. One is made of a peach basket having about 12 slats.

Cut each slat as shown in the cut, so as to permit each fowl to thrust its head between without discomfort. Fasten this onto a cheesebox cover or other suitable foundation, taking care to do this so it can be opened. Put in the feed. This arrangement is especially desirable for soft feed; also for protecting drinking water.

Another device suggested is one for feeding bran in a dry state to fowls or young chicks. Take a flowerpot, cut a piece out of the top on each side 4 inches long and 1 1/4 inches deep, turn it bottom up and break a hole in it large enough to pour the bran in. Get a cheesebox lid about four inches larger in diameter than the top of the pot, set the pot in it, bottom up, pour in the bran, and you will have a self feeder and no waste.

A Word About Cutworms.

T. Greiner, excellent authority, says that the free use of potash salts, nitrate of soda and perhaps of other concentrated fertilizers does not seem to agree with cutworms. He has got entirely rid of them and suspects that it was done by these means. He also recommends close cropping, which involves thoroughly clean cultivation and late summer or fall plowing.
